SUB TITLES

1. The city of Nogales, Arizona, overspreading the border of Mexico, unites the commercial resources of these two republics into a great friendship.
2. In the midst of this growing relationship at Nogales, General Obregon, President of Mexico, once lived.
3. Today finds in Post No. 122 a mark of friendship rather than just a mark separating two countries.
4. With the coming of Obregon's inauguration, the home folks of Nogales accompanied by many U. S. officials and notables journeyed into Mexico.
5. The wonderful old mission Tumacacori, first of all missions in the United States, just outside of Nogales.
6. A little further on the road to El Paso was the mission at Tucson.
7. Obregon's home folks at El Paso's gateway into Mexico.
8. Mexico has, in the past two years, recovered itself in a remarkable way -- fear and distrust no longer hinder the visitors of this progressive Republic.
9. At Jimenez the exaggerated stories of Mexico's hostile condition prove but a myth.
10. The great majority of Mexicans have always desired the conditions which now exist toward the U. S. This was evident in the cordial welcome received at Zacatecas.
11. Mexico has wiped out most of the stumbling blocks in her pathway to successful government.
12. The town of Guadalupe.
13. A warm welcome was received at Aguascalientes, but where are the bandits that we are led to believe make up the greater part of the Mexican population?
14. On the way to the pyramids at San Juan Teotihuacan.
15. "This banquet is an example of the feeling of good will by the Federal Departments of Mexico toward the people and interests of the United States in Mexico."
16. The Los Angeles Board of Commerce visits Guadalajara, a well kept, beautiful city, known as the "Paris of Mexico."
17. A 3000 - foot climb.
18. The engineer serves hot water to the native women.
19. "Guernavaca," chosen by Cortes, as a beautiful spot for his home.
20. Berda Garden.
21. The bathing pool of the Empress Charlotia.
22. Mexico City.
23. President Alvaro Obregon, who took over the reins of the Mexican Government, December 1, 1920.

24. The Plaza De Constitucion, the largest plaza in the Republic and constructed on what was the centre of the ancient Aztec city.
25. The Castle Chapultepec situated at the top of Grasshopper Hill, 196 feet above the valley.
26. Mr. de la Huerta, retiring President of Mexico, escorts Obregon to take his Oath of Office.
27. Obregon is presented with a paper weight, recalling Post 122 at Nogales, Sonora, where he once lived.
28. Mrs. Obregon, formerly of Nogales, receives a beautiful token of friendship.
29. The man who has convinced the greater part of the outside world that his country can and will take its place among the progressive nations of the world.
